

Letter of Endorsement

17 November 2002

My name is Sergeant (Retired) Daniel Lauzon CD, SSM; I entered the Canadian Forces In Sept/98 and served until August/96. While in the forces I had the honor of serving with The Royal Canadian Regiment (all 3 Battalions) as well as with the Canadian Airborne Regiment. I was one of the members that served in the Gulf War with 1 RCR Charles Company and served in Somalia with 3 Commando.

Throughout my military career I had the opportunity to learn a martial art discipline called THE BLACK ARTS. This discipline teaches the art of pressure point applications that is used by very few people in the world. It is a self-defense art that enables a person to take down and if necessary disable your enemy within seconds. An Art that our soldiers require in this day and age. I have studied the Airborne self-defense pam but found that it only showed the basics of self-defense. The Black Arts Self-defense books and DVD's are far more superior to any other I have had the opportunity to study. I ask that you please take the time to look at the materials provided and you will see what I mean.

With all the wars that are going on at this time and the possible threat with Iraq, our soldiers will require a self-defense that will make them feel confident at the time that they may require it most. The Black Arts will give our soldiers the skills and confidence they need. Please look at the materials and decide for yourself. I am one of the masters that can and will teach our soldiers the defense techniques required in order for them to survive. We may be a small military force but we are the best military in the world.

Sincerely:

SGT. Daniel Lauzon CD. SSM
